HIGHER ALGEBRA

By HERBERT E. HAWKES, Professor of Mathematics in Columbia University

(Published February, 1913) $1.40

THIS text, while it does not emphasize the applications of algebra to the detriment of a thorough development of the subject itself is written in the spirit of applied mathematics and is especially adapted for use in technical schools. It is designed for students who are competent to pass the usual college entrance examinations in elementary algebra.

A concise but illuminating review of the most important features of elementary algebra is followed by a thorough discussion of the quadratic equation and the more advanced topics, including series, which are essential for the student who wishes to make adequate preparation for the calculus.

In view of its particular importance, the chapter on the Theory of Equations is treated with unusual care in the hope that the processes which students often perform in a perfunctory manner will take on life and additional interest.

The exercises are new and serve not only to illustrate the text, but to test and develop the power of the student at every turn.
